Excerpt from A Historical Sketch of the Japan Mission of the Protestant Episcopal Church Soon after this commenced the persecution of Missionaries and native Christians. In 1596 six Jesuit priests and twenty converts were crucified, and an edict of expulsion was promulgated against the Portuguese, who at that time claimed to have visited all parts of the Empire and to have made one hundred thousand converts. The work of persecution went mercilessly on, but as late as 1629 there were still four hundred thousand native Christians in Japan. In 1636 occurred a terrible massacre of Christians said to have numbered more than two hundred thousand, and it was ordered that the image of the saviour should be desecrated by being publicly trampled under foot.
