Excerpt: . roots to remain in place beyond the normal period. One writer has said: It should be borne in mind that the interdependence of the teeth is so great at all times that the loss of one or more at any period in their history must have a marked influence upon the remaining teeth. To illustrate the bad effects of premature extraction of the deciduous teeth, a case recently came into my hands for treatment that illustrates the statement in a forcible manner. In the upper jaw the permanent incisors, the permanent molars and the permanent first bicuspid are erupted and in the arch. The second temporary molars are the only deciduous teeth left in the arch and they occupy their proper positions. The temporary cuspid had been extracted, and the arch has contracted until it is closed, leaving no spaces for the permanent...
