Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Culture in Education But you will be wondering what all this has to do with cul ture and with us? Well, I want you to realize that the culture we enjoy and represent is the fruit of all our past as a race, that it has depended on material elements, such as are fur hished by the crops, the mines, the factories, the things that the ships and railways bring to us and carry away from us. How these things belong to culture, let us not stop now further to enquire in detail, and I am sure that it was expected of me to draw a sharp dividing line between the practical, utilitarian elements of life and the cultural. Believe me, those who draw Such dividing lines are separating the inseparable. They re mind me of the heirs of a certain rich man I once knew, who divided up his library among themselves so that each heir re ceived two volumes of Grote and Gibbon and Macaulay and the rest, but none received a whole set! You wouldn t get a half-yard of cloth by raveling out all the cross threads from a Whole yard, you wouldn t have any cloth left at all. Howinfinitely more complex in the weaving is man than a piece of cloth, and to educate him to perform only one service in the world is sadly to belittle his chances of larger grth. so I would not have you believe that a practical, to the exclusion of a cultural education, or a cultural education without regard for the practical, is desirable for any one of you, much less for large classes of our people. The old...
