Createspace, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 198 x 129 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Running parallel to the conventional history of Liverpool . there is an unseen seam of supernatural stories that have been largely ignored by the strait-laced historians, says Tom Slemen, who is, of course, fascinated by this other history and no subject matter is too strange or too terrifying to merit his scrutiny. While some stories may prove to be nothing more than urban myths, many turn out to be only too spine-chillingly true. Take for example the phantom mare of Dovecot House, which wreaked revenge on Ralph Walsh, the man who had poisoned her. Plus: * The chilling case of the greedy Toxteth man who was willing to sacrifice the soul of a homeless man to obtain the winning Euromillions Lottery numbers from the Devil * The psychopathic doppelganger that attempted to kill its flesh-and-blood counterpart * The Red Menace - a ghastly zombie-like being that has stalked Liverpool children for decades * The Phantom Road that appears on the M62 and hypnotically draws motorists to their deaths * The gut-wrenching story of the Wind from Hell - when a raging hurricane uprooted trees and coffins galore in St James s Cemetery - was it a natural occurrence - or the result of a gypsy s curse? This story is not to be read if you have a weak stomach! * The well-documented case of the Sefton Park Vampires who terrorised a party of students in the 1960s * The boy who was stalked by a fetch - a creepy little wizened figure of an old woman who followed the child home to..well, you ll have to read the book to find out. * The terrifying case...
