Excerpt from Why Four Gospels: Or, the Gospel for All the World; A Manual Designed to Aid Christians in the Study of the Scriptures, and to a Better Understanding of the Gospels. It is admitted on all hands that the central point of attack upon Christianity in the present age is found in the Gospels. The life of Jesus, says Tischendorf, is the most momentous of all questions which the Church has to encounter, - the one which is decisive whether it shall or shall not live. The assailants demand that the Christian apologist shall put his system to the test of exhibiting its philosophic basis and its rational explanation. It is a growing conviction in many Christian minds, that the most conclusive argument for the divine origin of the four Gospels is not that furnished by the external evidences but by the Gospels themselves; that whoever can be brought to take a truly scientific view of them, that is, to see them as they really are in themselves and their relations, will need no further arguments to convince him that these productions are each and all from God.
