Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Third Biennial Report of the Kansas State Horticultural Society, Vol. 19: For the Years 1891-93, Containing the Proceedings of the Annual Meetings in 1891- 93 We are pleased to be able to submit to you herewith a copy of the third biennial report of the Kansas State Horticultural Society, and ask for it your careful examination. While the fundamental principles which govern the practical working of the art of horticulture are concisely presented therein, the scientific requirements for their application are also prominently and quite fully presented, in simple and popular terms, that the masses engaged in the industry may readily comprehend and put them in practice. The unfruitfulness of the orchards of the state during the last two years is only a repetition of similar occurrences in some of the most favored fruit regions of the United States, and there is ample evidence that the cause of these failures is similar in all those states; and to reach a conclusion as to the most successful and economic treatment to prevent a recurrence of such failures, the labors and research of the most talented and skillful scientists have been brought into requisition, both in the laboratory and the field. This work is being conducted at the agricultural experiment stations, which are specially equipped for such purposes; and, by persistent and careful experimentation, remedies have been found and the beet methods for applying them determined and published to the people through station bulletins. While the methods of treating the causes of such failures in crops are new, and not fully understood, so also are the causes new to a large portion of the culturists. Under such...
