Street Light Dreams, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Like a classic Picasso painting, his literary genius doesn't just leap off the pages--it gets into the heart and soul of the reader. Mirroring the style and prose of literary greats such as Robert Frost, Langston Hughes and Maya Angelou, Kefentse Booth not only paints vivid pictures with his choice of words--he immerses the reader so deep into the situation at hand that they hardly ever have time to come up for fresh air. His undeniable love for music and passion for the written (and spoken) word shape his sentences into rhythmic compositions that leave readers craving more long after they've turned the last page. Raised by a Detroit public school educator, Booth's poetic infatuation sprouted at a very young age--landing him a poetry feature in The Michigan Chronicle, Detroit's oldest African-American newspaper, at the age of twelve. His obsession with the concept of love, coupled with his strong interest in community affairs and social conscious topics, led him to compile essay-style narrations, which catapulted him into writing competitions as early as high school. Supported by teachers and family, Booth soon excelled in numerous writing contests, where he greatly honed his skills and learned how to engage audiences of all diversities. Even when he attended Tuskegee University, where he obtained his Bachelor of Science in Business Administration, Booth not only played sports consistently--but he continued to pursue his exposition as he wrote about the parallels of love and life. In his debut book, Miles Traveled Down Love s Highway, Booth takes readers on a journey of life lessons and the reality of relationships. No matter where readers choose to get on this sensual highway, they will experience pain,...
