Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Status of Planning for the 2000 Census and the 1995 Census Test: Hearing Before the Subcommittee on Census, Statistics, and Postal Personnel of the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, House of Representatives, One Hundred Third Congress, Second Session, September 27, 1994 The subcommittee met, pursuant to call, at 2:20 p.m., in room 311, Cannon House Office Building, Hon. Thomas C.Sawyer (chairman of the subcommittee) presiding. Members present: Representatives Sawyer and Petri. Mr. Sawyer. Thank you all for your patience. It is really one of those times of the year. I am grateful to everybody and glad that it is a group of people who are more or less regular partners of this committee and the work that we do. The 1995 Census Test is just a few months away. It really offers the very best opportunity that we have to achieve what we have all been working for for a long time now, and that is a census that is more accurate and, if possible, less proportionally costly and able to meet the Nations information needs. I feel very good about the directions that the Census Bureau has been going in and they are about to test many of the right kinds of innovations. I have been pleased to watch what can only be described as near consensus develop among experts such as some testifying today on this point. The lingering question is whether these test results will produce pure, clear, unequivocal answers to suggest whether and how we might implement those new methods. And the test ought to tell us not only what works, but how much we think it will..
