Excerpt: .of grief, woe, wretched, and dying, the blessed apparitions and tokens of heaven make themselves visible to our eyes. It is similar in the course of human events that when some great principle which guides us practically in the daily intercourse with men becomes in the general lustre more clear and more pronounced, we gain double sight by descending to the bottom of the well of human experience. In searching in new regions for the foot tracks of truth, let us endeavor to enter the domain of reason through natural laws, thus plowing the virgin soil that has lain so long untrodden, we find that every sower of truth since time began, has scattered his grain regardless of where it might fall, or who should be the reaper; and the gatherer of the sheaves has bound the wheat and tares together. Relieving that the...
