And again Mr. Chickenhackle would have impressed the spectator with the idea of fleas. CHAPTER V. A DOMESTIC DIFFERENCE. Why, my dear! cried Mrs. Chickenhackle, as her spouse entered her room; how rough your hair is! Whatever have you been doing to it you look quite wild. And enough to make me. Heres Elizabeth Meagrim comes one minute, and says that if her godchild isnt christened with her name first, she shant have her legacy; and then, the next minute, comes Mary Ricketts, and says that if the child isnt christened with her name first, she shant have her legacy! And how can it be done We cant make the two names march side by side, like school-girls...
