Excerpt from Report on the Pyrite and Pyrrhotite Veins in Jefferson and St. Lawrence Counties, New York The Grenville gneisses and limestones associated with the pyrite veins have suffered severe compression and have been folded tightly together and overturned SO as to now dip in general quite uniformly to the northwest, as is well illustrated by the isoclinal syncline NW Of Antwerp. They have also been intruded by masses of granite. But Smyth has concluded that the pyrite veins were formed subsequent to this intense period of metamorphism and intrusion, although they maintain a persistent parallelism to the foliation with a general NW dip.
