Excerpt: . pleasure. -- Happy should I be, my dear child, could my instructions, and my assistance, make your future life one scene of unbroken, unclouded peace;--But we are at the end of our walk, and have now many pressing matters to arrange. CHAPTER IX. The Duty of Exertion.--Indolence a Crime.--How to shorten a long Day.--Anxiety indulged, leads to many Mischiefs. Serena spent a happy week in anticipating her brother's return. Every evening, she watched the setting sun that closed another day; she watched it with pleasure, for evening was welcome to her. Every morning, she opened her eyes with new glee; the first thought that rushed to her heart THE GARDEN. 141 was, I shall soon see my brother. She rose, she dressed herself, she wandered through the garden. How charming are the fresh breezes of the early morning! Serena felt them invigorate her frame. Felix will soon be here, she exclaimed, as she wandered along; he will also say with me, how sweet are these flowers, how green those fields!--We shall again be together --We shall be happy!--Oh! how happy!--Thus she indulged herself until, the hour of breakfast having arrived, she entered the house with a face glowing with health and joy.-- Mamma, she exclaimed, I have had such a charming walk! The garden is now so very pleasant! Every thing so bright and beautiful! -- I congratulate you, my love, answered her mother, on having tasted the charms of this...
