It looks at the four credit management functions: Terms of credit, credit analysis, collection procedures and monitoring accounts receivables. Mission hospitals experienced very high levels of receivables making it difficult to operate. The study used the quantitative-descriptive research method of research. A pilot study was conducted to test the overall reliability and validity of the gathering tool. The research covered mission hospitals spread across Kenya to help determine the effectiveness of credit management. The study established that monitoring accounts receivable rates is highest and needs to be improved for better performance. Management of accounts receivable remains a big challenge to mission hospitals. The study found out that there is a need to work closely with an institute of credit management to help set guidelines for effective management. 92 pp. Englisch.
